IN THE CLAWS OF THE LIZARD

STARRING

Jolting Jacob

Daily Bugle photographer Peter Parker's trip to the Florida Everglades is about to take a turn for the worse.

I bet the Lizard didn't expect Spider-Man to be on board.

Spider-Man is shown in mid-air, swinging on a web that extends from the top left corner of the panel. He is in a crouched position, ready to land.

Sorry, Lizard, but I can't let you go rocking the boat.

Iron Man is running towards the right side of the panel. He is wearing his full suit, including the helmet with the visor and the chest arc reactor. His right arm is raised in a fist.

Hi, Spidey. I was in the area and thought you might want a hand with tall, dark, and scaly.

A large, scaly Lizard is standing on the edge of a boat. It has its mouth open, showing sharp teeth. Its long tail is curled up. A speech bubble is coming from its mouth.

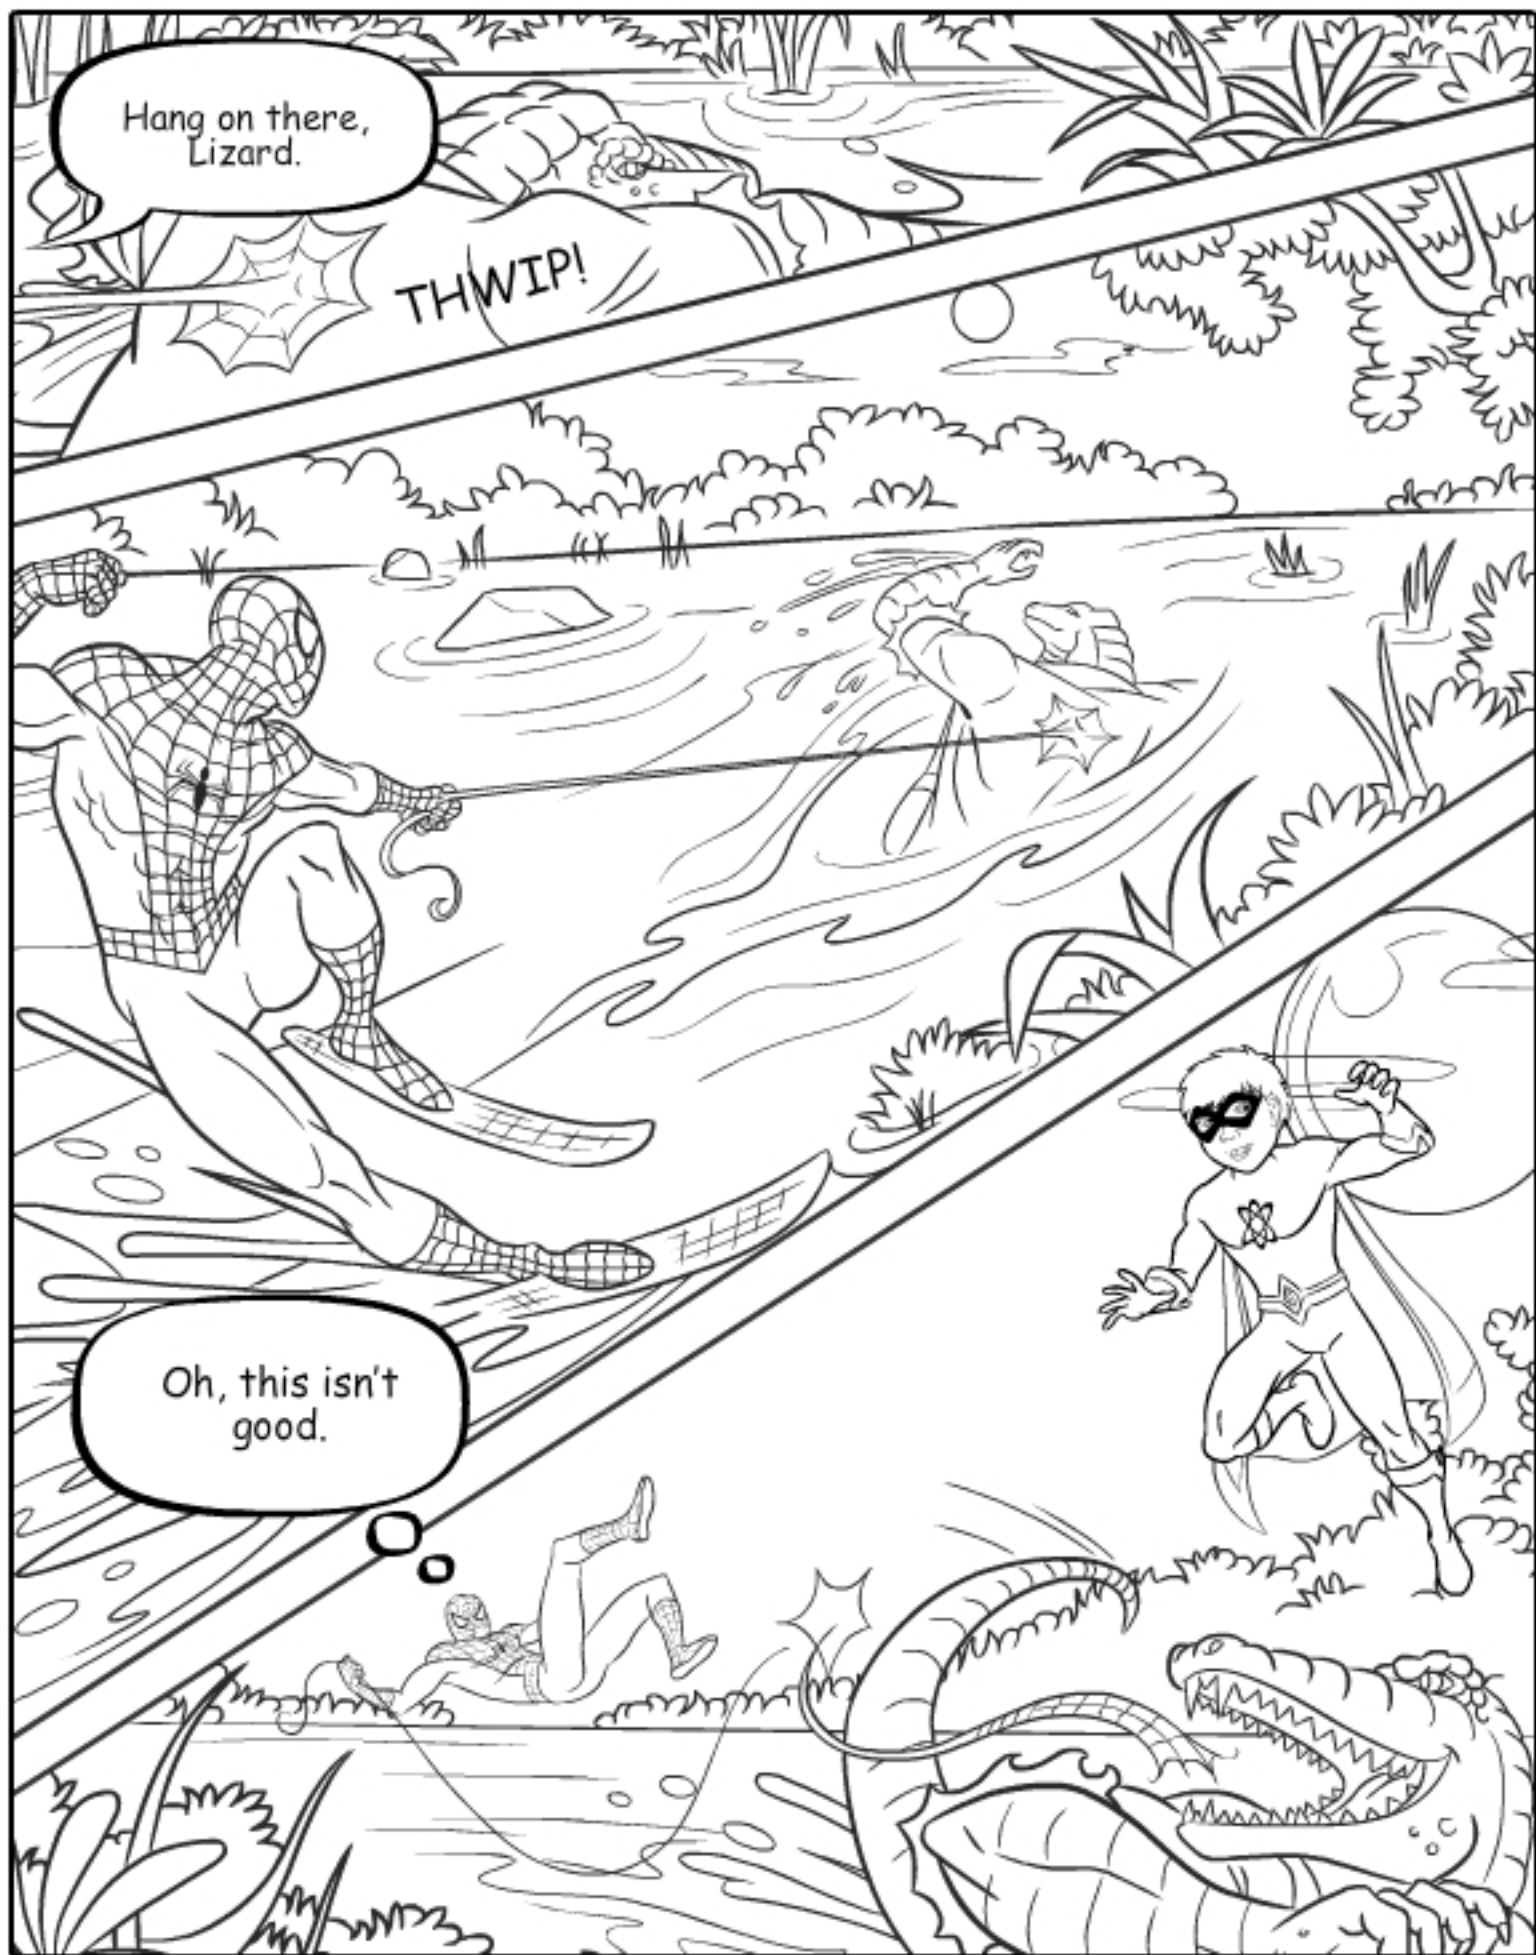

Spider-Man!

A man is sitting on the boat, looking up at the Lizard with a surprised expression. He has his hands near his face.

Hang on there,
Lizard.

THWIP!

Oh, this isn't good.

Hang on, Spidey!
I've got you.

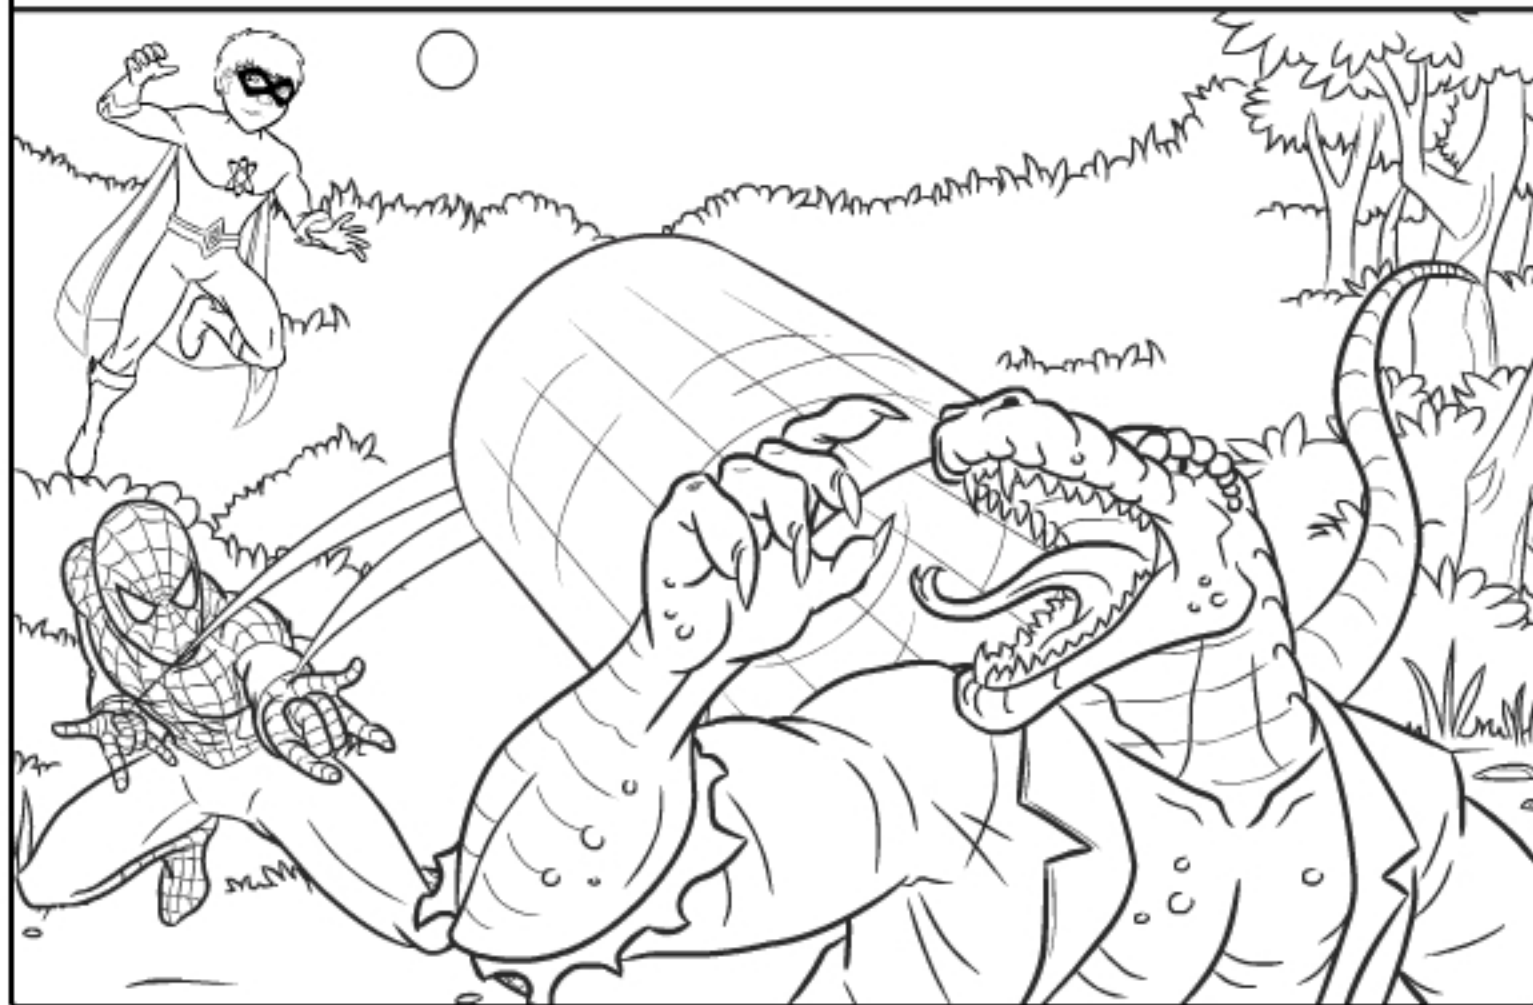

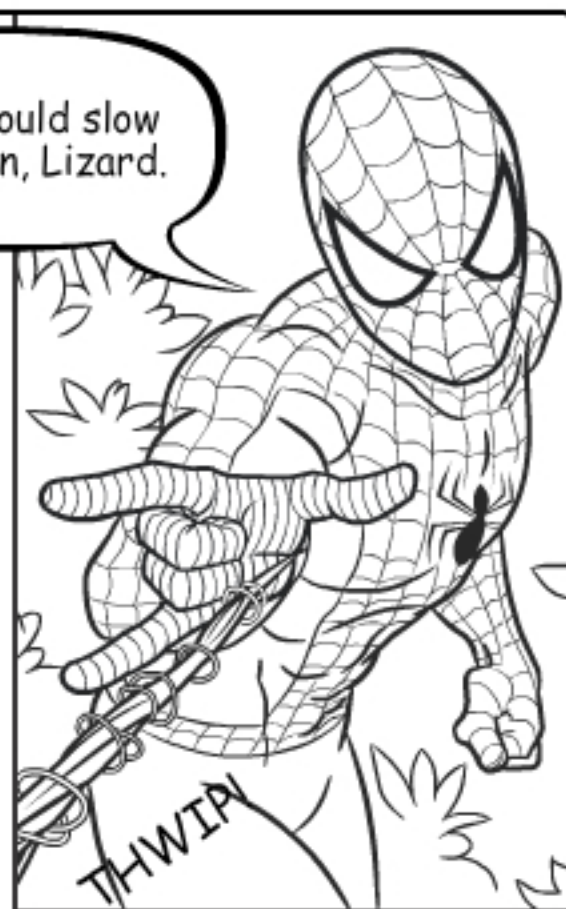

Thanks for the lift,
Jolting Jacob.

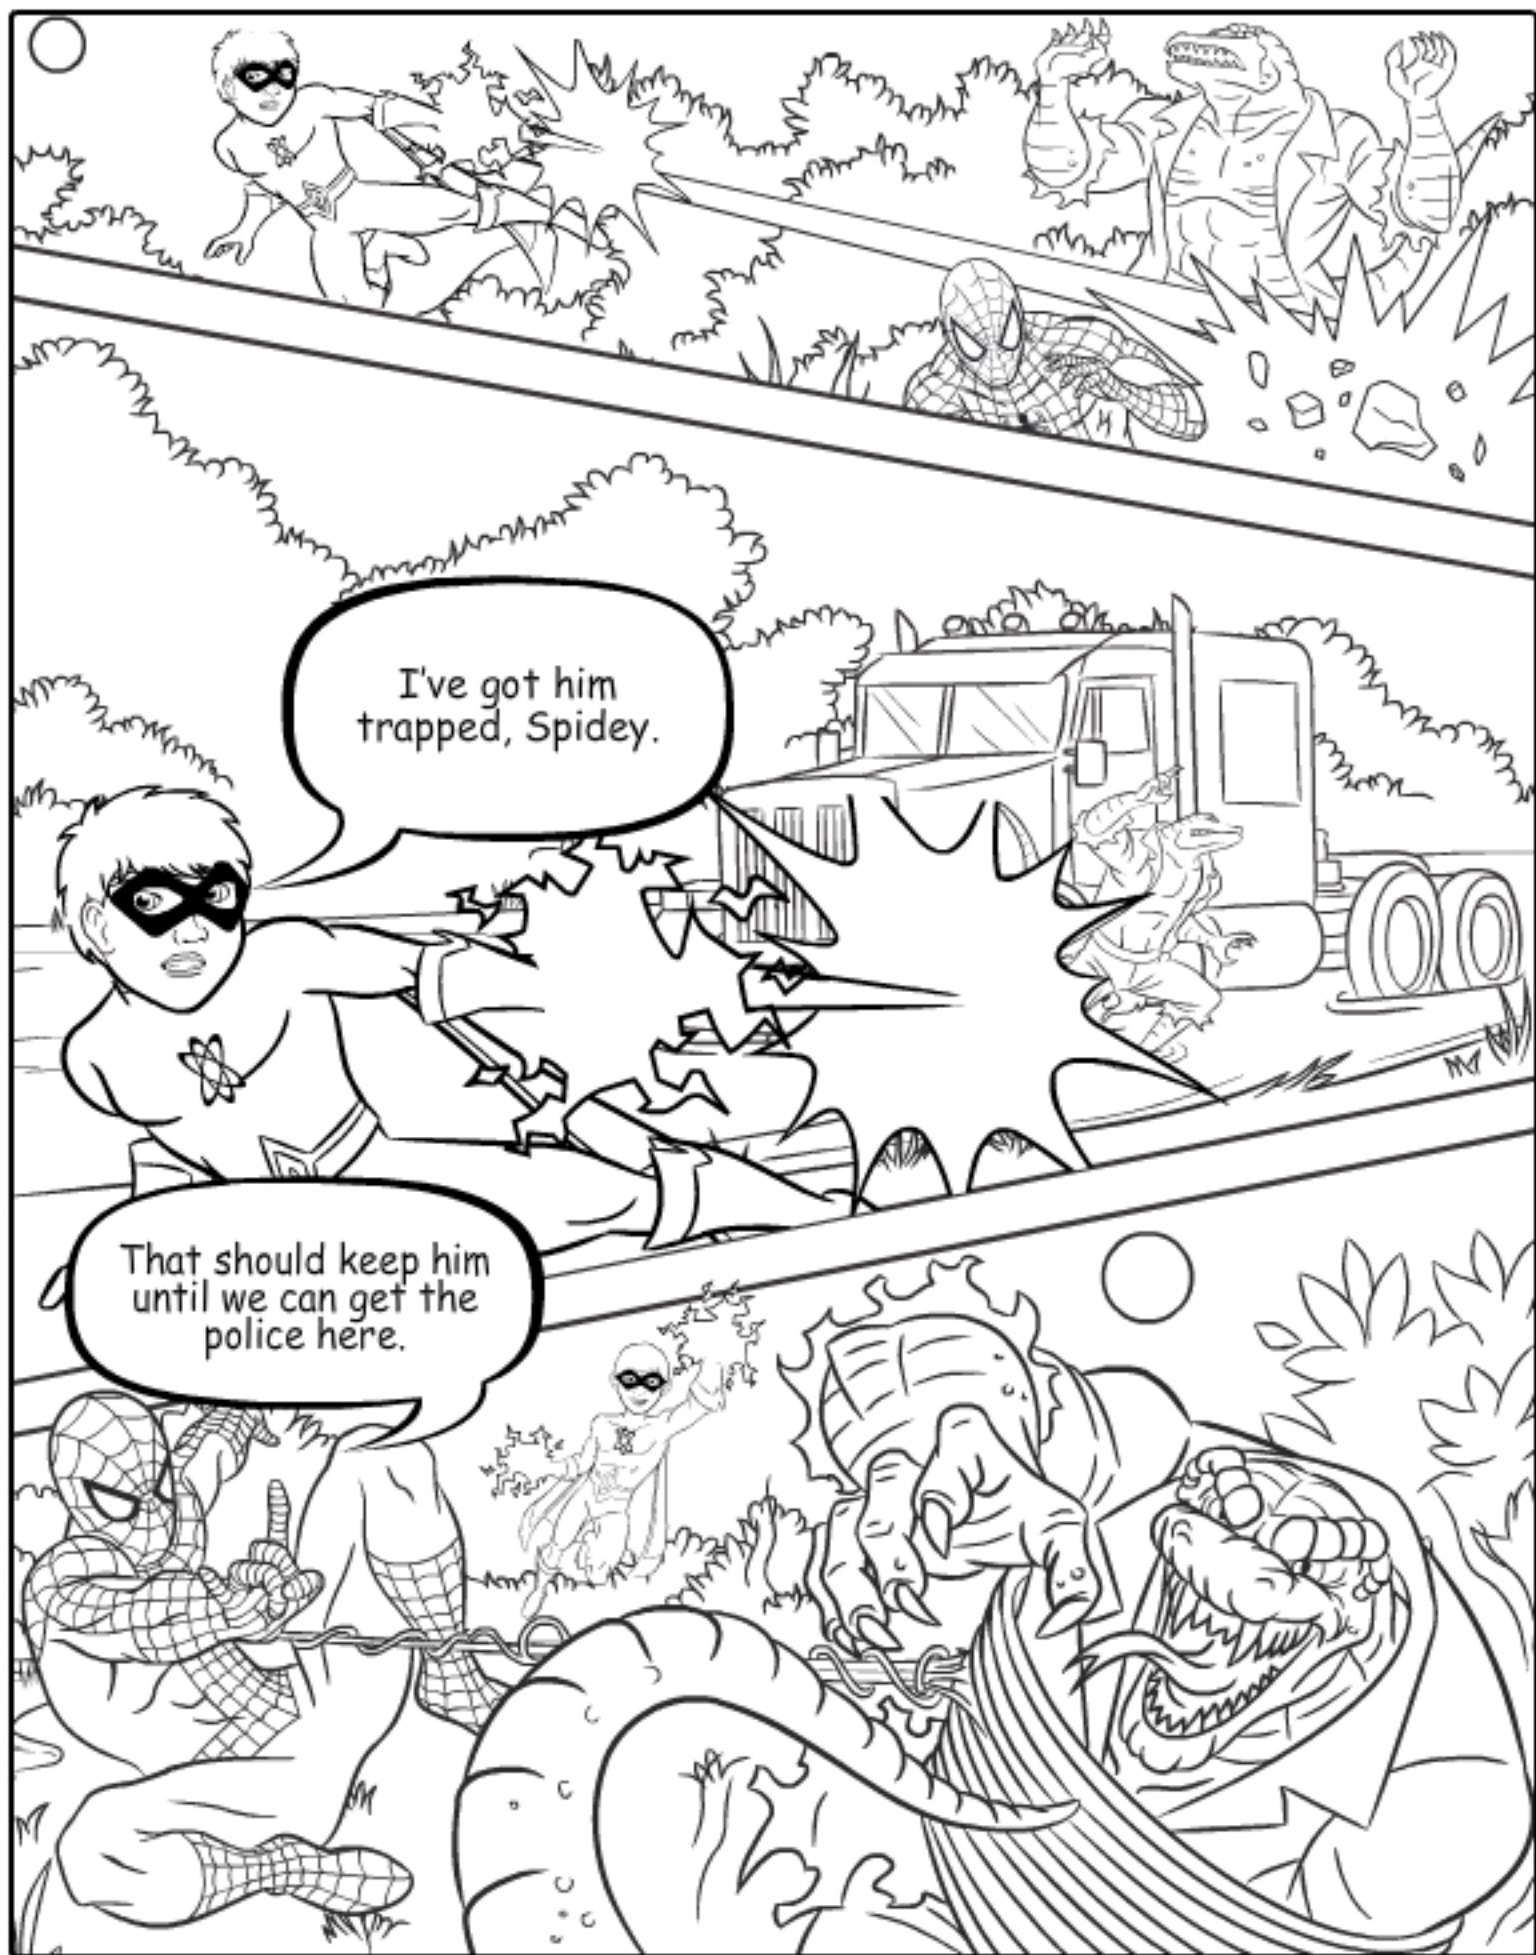

This should slow you down, Lizard.
